Merrimac accumulates streams efficiently by using hardware supported stream scatter-add operations.

The stream scatter-add instruction simplifies stream programs, and gives an order of magnitude or more performance benefit over other algorithms and other machines for certain applications.